

A Message of Hope from Christ

(Blog 0005 AndrewHadden.org)

Christ spoke these words to me to share in this time, to give people hope:

Hope! All is not lost! The end times have been the subject of much empty speculation and proof texting by those that do not know me. I did not tell my Apostles everything. I will not tell you everything. All must walk by faith – and obedience. Read my Word. Know me through it. Study it. Study me, my character, my love, my justice, my mercy. Come to me in humility, confessing your sin, turning from it, and find forgiveness and mercy. Still, there will be consequences, in this life, and sacrifice of some measure of reward in the next, the eternal life I have offered. The Truth has been offered a long time. Those who have ignored it will have a price to pay, but all is not lost. There is hope. Now is not a time to increase your sins out of hopelessness.

Understand my judgment that has fallen. I measure all in souls, souls to be won to eternal life with me. These were certain to cost souls lost. Them being judged was a small price to pay versus the souls that would be lost if they were not removed. My judgment is my mercy at work, preserving or winning the most souls that I can. I grieve over having to do it. My heart is heavy. But this was necessary or more souls, many more souls, would be lost or never won.

Who opposed me? The Pharisees. Those certain of their own rightness but opposing my plan of salvation, of mercy, for the world. Those who made much of their rules not found in scripture and judged others unscripturally. Yet they neglected what was clearly in scripture and the spirit of the laws, the rules, in scripture. They were harsh in their judgment of others and I was harsh with them – as I warned I would be. Judgment came upon them, after much delay.

It was the same in this day. They broke my Word carelessly, at great cost to others, and would not repent even though strongly and repeatedly warned – by me or my messengers. I am raising up a man to speak for me, a voice to be listened to. He is appointed to bring mercy and protection to many. Many lives and many souls are in the balance. These have risen up against him, judged him unscripturally, believed lies about him, and given no mercy. Thus, they did not receive mercy. I defend my servants. They may suffer long under persecution, but my justice will come – in this life or the next, in eternity. Make no mistake, justice will come. I am a just judge. But now I offer forgiveness for true repentance, sorrowful repentance. But the unrepentant will face justice.

The seasons have shifted. The times have changed. A new era dawns. I will now interact much more with my creation. My rule is coming.
